

A diagram of a building facade, likely a school or institutional building, featuring a grid of windows and doors. The facade is composed of light orange and white rectangular sections. The top section has a row of small, square windows. Below this is a larger section with a grid of rectangular windows. The bottom section features a large, central door flanked by windows. The entire facade is enclosed within a black rectangular border.